

To: Goodrick, John[Goodrick.John@epa.gov]
From: Williams, Laura
Sent: Mon 2/23/2015 9:44:13 PM
Subject: Re: Red River

Sorry John. I'm in training today. Hope to be out soon?

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 23, 2015, at 1:47 PM, Goodrick, John <Goodrick.John@epa.gov> wrote:

Laura: (2nd graph, 1st sentence)

Your suggestion to use both the new along with the familiar.....MSDS/SDS (Material Safety Data Sheets/Safety Data Sheets.....got too unwieldy in attempting to use both acronyms, both spelled out, both explained, and how one was now globalized usage and the other was the more familiar term.....

See if this version fits what you wanted.....initially I use the correct form - Safety Data Sheets (checked with OSCs to ensure this was the correct usage)....and then I refer to the former, but better recognized term (MSDS sheets)....everyone who has taken Chem 101 knows this term.....even at KU.

Separately, I also sent you photos we could use.

-John

I came by your desk four times, but apparently I always....just missed you, according to Freed.

<Red River Supply WarehouseR8#5 2015.docx>